

---

c

---

Studies human growth over the life span covering the biological influences on development and the processes of intellectual and social development. Reviews the family system and explores major challenges and developmental issues facing families today.

Explores the dynamics of development, interaction, and intimacy of primary relationships in contextual and theoretical